

MINI-CASE

07 / 10

Students complete the unpublished four-question practice Quiz. The items check neutral wording, useful answer choices, privacy, and the analyst-to-career connection. Unlimited attempts and immediate feedback make this formative.

- Which question is more neutral: “Wouldn't a faster bus help everyone?” or “How often would you use a bus that arrived every 20 minutes?” Explain.

- Name one answer-choice defect that can make survey results misleading.

- Name one piece of private information this fictional survey should not collect.

- Explain one action a Transportation Needs Analyst could take after finding a repeated access problem. If Canvas is unavailable, use the four-item paper check in the packet.
